

A detailed photograph of the Fontaine de la Fontaine des Quatre Fleuves (Fountain of the Four Rivers) in Rome. The central figure is the personification of the Nile River, a bearded man standing on a rock. To his left is the Danube, a woman reclining. To his right is the Ganges, a woman reclining. In the foreground, a woman reclining represents the Tiber. The fountain is set against a classical building facade with columns and arches. Latin inscriptions are visible on the arches: "POSITIS SIGNIS ET ANA" on the left, and "GL YPHIS TANIS IVSSV CLEMEN TIS VII PONTI MAX" and "NI CVITVA" on the right. The water flows over several tiers of rocks into a pool at the bottom.
